AIR CONDITIONING Who does it help? Who does it hurt?

Air conditioning is everywhere in America...in our homes, schools, and businesses. Cooling ourselves consumes more electricity than all 60 nations of the African continent consume for all purposes! While air conditioning saves lives during heat waves, death rates from heat have been six times higher for black as for white populations in several Northern US cities.

Huge energy demands for more routine, lavish cooling will bring on more frequent and intense heat waves in the future. Most people agree on a universal right to adequate food, water, health, and shelter. But as the planet warms, how do we decide who has the right to maintain not just health and life, but simple comfort as well?

Especially when the technology worsens the problem it is designed to fix!

Stan Cox, senior scientist at the Land Institute in Salina, Kansas, and author of Losing Our Cool, will speak on the promises and perils of air conditioning.
