

The Missouri State Auditor certified that there are sufficient signatures to mandate an audit of the City of St. Louis. Members of the Green Party of St. Louis spearheaded the signature drive in late 2006 after concern that the City was not fully disclosing where lead poisoning prevention money was being spent.

The issue has now gone far beyond lead poisoning dollars. Some citizens are asking, Where are the tax dollars owed the public schools? Where was HUD grant money spent that should have been used to repair homes later blighted.

And why has money not been able to fund a Civilian Oversight Board for the Police Department? A big concern is with block grants that were made so the businesses would create jobs for low income citizens. Where are those jobs?
